City Council President Stephanie Rawlings-Blake Announces “Top Neighborhood Moms” Contest

Baltimore, MD (March 10, 2008) – For the second straight year, Baltimore City Council President Stephanie Rawlings-Blake is in search of Baltimore’s “Top Neighborhood Moms.” The contest, being launched during Women’s History Month, honors those dedicated women who have given selflessly to keep Baltimore’s neighborhoods strong, clean, and safe. Baltimore neighborhood residents and community associations are asked to nominate their “Top Neighborhood Mom,” along with the reasons she should be recognized for her work. The person nominated does not necessarily need to be an actual mother, but rather someone who has given motherly love through her work for her community.

Council President Rawlings-Blake will be on hand to personally thank each “Top Neighborhood Mom” at a special luncheon hosted by actress Maria Broom on May 8, 2008, in recognition of Mother’s Day.

Applications are available online at www.baltimorecitycouncil.com, and are also being distributed to neighborhood associations throughout the City. Applications can also be obtained by calling 410-396-4804. The deadline for submission of “Top Neighborhood Mom” applications is April 14, 2008.
